

Dr. Parrozzani Raffaele

Raffaele Parrozzani was born in 1980 in Montebelluna, Treviso. He graduated in Medicine and Surgery from the University of Padua in 2005. In 2006 he won the Alceste Mion Prize for Ophthalmology. He earned a specialized degree in Ophthalmology in 2010 from the University of Padua. In 2010 he became Fellow of The European Board of Ophthalmology. In 2013 he obtained a PhD in Oncology and Surgical Oncology. He is an active member of: International Society of Ocular Oncology, European Ocular Oncology Group, Association for Research in Vision and Ophthalmology (ARVO), European Association for Vision and Eye Research (EVER), Società Oftalmologica Italiana (SOI) e Società Italiana della Retina. He is currently working for the G.B. Bietti Foundation, IRCCS, in the Ocular Oncology and Toxicology Research Unit. His fields of interest include the application of conservative therapies in the management of intraocular tumors, the use of topical chemotherapy in the treatment of ocular surface neoplasms, and the treatment of orbital and adnexal tumors.